Alas! poor Sam! thou art now at rest, Hoped in mansions of the blest;
By thy rich bed, any'hers known & spent,
And my renewed — not one half cent!

Alas poor Lorn! thou art now at rest, I hope in mansions of the blest; By thy side last sixteen hours I spent, For my care I got — not one cent!! and my reward not one half cent Full many a time at dead of night From balmy slumber's visions bright; Thy hasty call would summon me I've gone to see thee written in pain, To ease thee of thy agony up. Wind and turn but all in vain amongst thee gnashes the piercing pain Oh Doctor save me or I die my end
Oh Doctor! quick — give me ease!
'Tis there.
Oh Doctor! quick, give me ease!
Oh Doctor — Oh take whate'er you please.
Oh save me! Oh! But soothe me now. Oh! Apply your skill!
For I am sick. Oh! sorely ill! Without your aid, I surely must die No tongue can tell my agony!
Hellish visions rack my frame I groan
The weary night
On pillow can be pain allay.
The miles of sleep I court in vain!
And wearied in slumber must till day.

Dear Sir

If you find the following cases, containing sufficient interest, to merit a place in your most excellent Journal, you are at liberty to do so, and I should be very happy to hear any remarks on the cases that may be suggested to your mot. gifted mind.

Most respectfully

Alexander H. Bayly M.D.

For the particulars of the following most remarkable and highly interesting case of degenerated Ovarium, accompanied with the diseased viscus in a beautifull state of preservation, I am indebted to the kindness of Dr Howes Goldsborough. It is perhaps one of the most remarkable cases in Ovarian pathology. It is true there are many cases on record, of the development of hair and other anomalous products in the human ovary, but I am not aware of there being a case, in which ~~the Ovarium can be found~~ that accidental formation took place to such an inordinate extent.

"I found Miss —— rapidly sinking under extreme agony, with a pulse from 150 to 160 per minute, the discharge from the umbilicus extremely fetid, and containing hair as ~~formerly~~ formerly, the opening being now nearly as large as an half dollar.

Immediately after her death, I was sent for to open the body, which I did in the presence of Dr —— and many of her friends. a probe was first passed into the umbilical opening with a view of ascertaining the depth and extent of the abscess. I found it led not penetrate the Peritoneum, nor could I find its extent in any direction. With a director and scalpel I made an opening through the Linea Alba to within an inch of the Pubis, and extended upwards to very near the Ensiform cartilage. Another incision was now made intersecting the previous one at right angles at the Umbilicus, nearly to the Lumbar vertebrae. Upon throwing back the divided integuments, how great was our astonishment! Imagine the whole of the integuments removed anteriorly from the Pubis to the Xiphoid cartilage, laterally on the left from the Os Ilium to the false ribs, and laterally on the right from the Os Ilium to the ninth rib, leaving the Peritoneum covered from a quarter to an inch thick with hair closely matted together by the most offensive of all secretions, and you will have a faint idea of the horrid appearance of the case. Upon removing the hair, (which was upwards of a quart) its origin was traced through a large sinus much obstructed with the same anomalous formation, passing down by the Os Ilium to the right ovarium, no absolute remains of which could be discovered, but in its place a sack filled with hair, communicating with the sinus. The inner ~~margin~~ ~~margin~~ surface of the sack more resembled a scalp thickly covered with hair, than any thing else, evidently possessing a cuticle and cutis, to all appearances in an undiseased condition. Under the ~~sac~~ cutis a very singular bone was discovered enveloped in the thickened side of the sack by firm ligamentous adhesions, the body of which was as large as your thumb, solid and compact, having cartilaginous processes giving it an odd shape, somewhat like a Bat with its wings folded. This sack had evidently a communication with the Uterus through the medium of the Fallopian tube, which was much larger than its fellow, admitting a large probe, and through which there appeared to be a discharge from the sack to the Uterus. There was nothing unnatural in the appearance of the Uterus, with the exception of its size, which was the cavity of which was four times its usual size. capacity. The Os Uteri much dilated. The left Ovarium and Fallopian tube were perfect, although somewhat atrophied, and its passage very small. There was nothing unusual in the appearance of any of the other viscera except where they came in contact with Peritoneum. The Omentum throughout adhering firmly to the Peritoneum, and the intestines to the Omentum. I understood when the discharge first took place at the Umbilicus, (four months since) that it was enormous — several quarts —. The Father of this unfortunate young lady, ~~had~~ informed me, that fully a pint at different times had been removed."

In August 1835 Adam, a slave, whilst chopping oats accidentally severed the last Phalanx of the Index finger from the hand, obliquely through the joint. I was called to see him about three quarters an hour after the occurrence of the accident. I found but little hemmorhage, owing the instrument not being ~~very~~ sharp. After carefully cleansing the parts with warm water and castile soap, I accurately replaced the amputated ~~member~~ part, and maintained it in its proper situation by strips of adhesive plaster, and on its palmar surface, a piece of pasteboard was applied, extending half an inch beyond its extremity, to prevent any flexion of the member, ~~and~~ it coming in contact with surrounding objects. A small roller bandage was carefully applied to the finger, and the hand placed in a sling. On the morning of the fourth day, I found him complaining very much of pain, and of the unpleasant odour arising from it. I was very fearfull that adhesion had failed to take place, and that the amputated part had become putrid, and was irritating the contiguous healthy tissues. Carefully removing the dressings, I was much gratified to find that my fears were entirely groundless, and that the pain and offensive odour arose from the decomposition of a small quantity of blood, which was effused after the finger was dressed, and from the secretion that could not escape. ~~although~~ although in applying the dressings I was very particular in having recourse for the matter. Examining the part, I found adhesion existing nearly throughout its entire extent, though not very firm after washing well, ~~with~~ a small quantity of Zinci. Myrrh. was dropped on it, and ~~then the dressings carefully replaced~~ was then redressed as formerly. The wound united almost throughout by the first intention, such a happy result I had but the reason to expect from the lacerated condition of the wounded: a month the finger was perfectly well, although tender—with Dr Thos Woolfolk to visit Henry the son of a neighboring planter. ~~Laboring under fever for 3 days~~ ~~3 days previous to my visit~~, I was informed by Dr W. that four days previous to my visit, the patient in endeavoring to carry a large dog of wood, to from the yard to the kitchen, was suddenly seized with a most severe pain in the inguinal region and testicle of the left side, which compelled him to drop the load with which he was burden; and it was with the greatest difficulty he reached the house. Being examined by some of the family and finding the left testicle much enlarged, concluded his testis was injured, and many domestic remedies were applied to this supposed orchitis. The next day the patient not having received the slightest alleviation from his sufferings, and the tumour increased in magnitude, they were became alarmed, and sent off Dr W. the family Physician, who

~~When he arrived he~~ found the patient labouring under a strangulated Bubonocele and endeavored by the use of the warm bath, ice &c to reduce it to the part, enemata, &c to reduce the protruded parts, and but all his efforts proved abortive, notwithstanding they were very perseveringly used was rapidly declining - [illegible] revealed [illegible] of [illegible] and forty in the minute frequent and small constant occasional vomiting of a [illegible] dark green fluid - [illegible] an entire suppression of stools - excruciating pain over the entire abdomen respiration very difficult and almost entirely thoracic, hiccough performed with and very much pain in the abdomen, abdomen very much enlarged - tense, and very tender to the touch of the bed clothes causing the patient to cry out with pain - the tumor [illegible] was - On making an examination of the groin I found as stated by Dr W a large strangulated Rochevalle very tense and elastic and extremely painful.

I made one or two allen efforts to effect its reduction by the taxis, but the patient uttered such lamentable cries as to compell me desist - I then told the Dr that [illegible] an operation [illegible] was the only possible chance the patient had, and that a very doubtful one, as Peritonitis [illegible] inflammation had already taken place to greater or less extent. He immediately acquiesced, [illegible] and requested me to perform the operation, which I did in the following manner: Having shaved the hair from the pubis and [illegible] adjacent parts, I commenced my incision about an inch and half above the internal ring and carried it obliquely downwards and inwards to the [illegible] nearly to the base of the tumor, [illegible] I then [illegible] slit up the various layers of Fascia with a Scalpel and director, and [illegible] attack and came to the [illegible] sacks, which I found very much injected. By carefully raising the a small portion of the sacks by means of a pair of dissecting forceps, I [illegible] divided it horizontally, and introduced a grooved director and laid open the sac with a scalpel, and immediately

I have for a long time, in fact ever since I commenced practicing my profession contemplated keeping a professional journal, in which I intended should be a faithfull record of the different cases that should fall to my treatment, interspersed with remarks professional, moral &c. Every attempt has been a miscarriage, one thing or another. ~~have invariably having invariably stopped put a stop to it~~ in the shape of professional calls, domestic engagements or the dropping in of Loafers &c have invariably put a stop to all my good intentions, but here goes on this the last of days Sunday 20th of July 1845.

This has been an unprecedented Summer in the memory of the oldest inhabitants, for extreme dryness and high range of the Thermometer. We have had but two rains in the last two months. The last rain was this night three weeks ago, accompanied with Thunder and lightning and a strong N North East Wind.

The earth is now as dry as the deserts of Arabia, ~~with~~ and the temperature ranging from 95° to 95 degs. The prevailing winds have been from the Southward and Westward. I never recollect seeing so many of the common House Fly as there were in last Month, which according to old women's notions are indications of a sickly season - "good est demonstrandum".

July - 20th. Visit Andrew Marshall 5 miles in the country - has been sick 4 days. on Friday last in the afternoon I saw him for the first time. He had a chill about 11 o'clock in the morning and ~~in the~~ when I saw him about 3 P.M. had considerable fever - pain in his limbs and back - Head ache - great thirst and restless - Tongue coated with a yellowish gray fur - bowels constipated. He has been working in Mr Hookers shop good very hard during all the hot weather. Rp Calomel — xv grs. and if it should fail to operate in six hours. castor oil or salts. The next day he was better. He took the salts which operated very freely - He passed a comperitively pleasant day. To day at 11 o'clock he was taken with a chill - Vomiting and purging during the chill - pain in the limbs and head and back and hips - The vomiting and purging had ceased when I arrived - he had considerable fever &c. Directed cold drinks and castor oil to be given to morrow morning - left 15 grs Quinine to be taken on Tuesday at 6 in the morning warm applications to the extremities and hot drinks until after the chill hour - you will most probably have deemed me inattentive to your most friendly communication, but circumstances have precluded me from acknowledging it receipt at an earlier period. Our county and in fact the whole Eastern shore have been severely scourged by a Bilious Congestive epidemic, rendering my professional labours arduous in the extreme, but a kind Providence has at length dispersed all noxious miasmatic vapors and blessed us with our wonted measure of good health. During the sickly season I enjoyed most robust health, in fact I had not time to get sick, my mind being constantly occupied in the strictly professional duties of my daily routine, thinking of, listening to and administering to the ailments of others. There is no doubt but that it is mainly attributable to the great mental revulsion that Physicians owe their immunity from disease during this season of Epidemics, and the laity should take advantage of this last fact, and always preserve a perfect equanimity of mind, by a disregardfulness of its presence, preserving their accustomed avocations.

The interesting physiological subject on which you make inquiries, has closely occupied my attention for the last ten years, and the conclusions to which my mind has been irresistibly drawn, is that it is mainly through vicious that the Buzzard poisons its victims.

I have these opinions with a mind perfectly unbiassed by any previous bias, if any prejudice existed it would be in favor of the old and most generally accredited belief in the infallibility of its olfactories.

The observations that I submit to you are not predicated upon traditionary legends of old fogies or negroes, but upon personal observations, made during professional rides through the county and experiments with a domesticated Buzzard.

In the summer of 1832 I procured a pair of young buzzards newly fledged, and gave them the liberty of my yard and garden, & in a very short time they became as tame as my hawks, coming to me when calling them, and eating meat greedily out of my hand. One was killed by a tame raccoon, the other I still have in my possession, and in the enjoyment of excellent health.

Domestication has somewhat physically changed him, He is rather stouter, and his plumage is more regular and glossy, and almost black than those in their native state. He is fed upon offal & the habit of regurgitation is characteristic of the buzzard.

He roams unmolested through our village, the boys respecting him from his antiquity, and he is looked upon as one of the fixtures of my household.

There is one particular limb of a tree in front of the dwelling which he seldom leaves except for food, or intently during intensely cold weather compels him to seek an asylum under the porch, To see in what manner he procured his food, I made many experiments, which I think satisfactory and perfectly conclusive. I would throw him a piece if meat in a clear open place, he would instantly fly down and devour it, I would then (while still very hungry) throw a piece in amongst the bushes, he would immediately run in the direction in which I had thrown it and look most sedately all about for it. I would leave him and in the course of the day return and find the food untouched and the bird roosting in its immediate vicinity stealthily removing the meat so as to make it safe, that he could see, he would fly down and devour it. I have placed meat under the tree where he roosted and covered it, and he never seemed to be aware of its close proximity, I would let it remain until it would actually become tainted, but his olfactory organs never appeared to him the reverse. All offal in offered situations he never escaped his eye and was invariably devoured if behind rubbish of any kind he never was able to discover it.

What conclusions could I arrive at from such facts? From such facts strong me in the field could I come to any other conclusion, than that it is by vision he lives?

In the month of August I paid a professional visit to a neighbouring planter, and riding up the lane leading to his residence I observed a very large bird lying dead in the field, but no Buzzards were near. I upon leaving his house

I mentioned the remarked to him that I had seen a day or two large dog lying dead in the field. He remarked that it was one of his finest hounds & rooks that had died that morning in convulsions. and he had observed that the birds in the [illegible] passing the field I observed two or three Buzzards sitting on the fence contiguous to the carcase, I supposing have and in the distance several more circling their flight apparently for the spot, I rode fast but stopped at a considerable distance, & and soon the commenced regaling themselves gorging themselves with the remains of the old sow. How did they discover the dead animal? It most assuredly could not have been from putrid emanations, for the animal had been dead but a few hours. I have frequently seen carcases remaining in their places of the woods, until destroyed by the disintegrating powers of [illegible] decomposed by chemical laws? Where then was that all-powerfull infallible mind?

your favour of the 3rd is at hand, and would have been immediately answered, but for professional engagements. I have time after time sought to acknowledge its receipt, and have as often been interrupted. Our profession is oftentimes a very inconvenient one.

The subject of which you make inquiries has been to me for the last four or five years one of no ordinary interest. I have now the great gratification of relieving in a few hours cases of which under the usual routine treatment would require many days and weeks.

I have for the last four or five years universally exhibited exhibited the Sulp. Quinine in our Autumnal fevers in ten and twenty gr doses with the most signal and happy success, relieving in a few hours cases which under the usual routine practice would require my attention for days and weeks. Its intrinsic value is not appreciated before giving it in small and oft repeated doses, it is true that when given it will eventually after a while cure a mild remittent or intermittent, so will any other excitant, but if the disease be one of violence, and where there is danger to be apprehended from a paroxysm, it is perfectly futile to administer it in one or two gr doses, the patient will in all probability have a tedious convalescence or succumb to the malignity of the disease. and the doctor will console his conscience and the friends of his victim, that all was done that could for him that could have been done, for he has the experience of forty years had always seen such cases terminate. How many there are who will most pertinaciously adhere to their blindly and old opinions in spite of reason and facts, and take shelter their eyes and ears and holding on to their forty years experience of false experience.

In taking a retrospect of part my professional life, the melancholy facts arises in colossal size before me, of many revered fatal cases treated by the then most approved practice, which now I am almost positively certain would have a different issue. For since I have changed my course of practice I have cured very many cases to all appearances much more malignant, violent. In times of yore I gave in congestive fever I gave Quinine as it was then used, and especially in conjunction with the most powerfull stimulo and revellent but without effect.

There is no substitute for Quinine, it is a remedy sui generis and capable of producing the most astonishing results when properly & used. What there is considerable difference in in its therapeutic action in large & small doses no one can for one moment doubt who has witnessed the results with admirable effect. In large doses it is sedative is peculiarly so, equalizing the vital forces and frequency so prominent a feature in Malarious diseases that of nervous system, the original and fundamental cause to which all the other phenomena are tributary. The remarkable effects of a 20gr dose is to throw out upon the entire surface of the body a warm copious perspiration - ringing sounds in the ears - temporary deafness - and of the force and frequency of the circulation. In several instances I have seen it calm the and restore the of Typhomania, in doses of 20 or repeated every hour or two it manifestly acts as an excitant pain and fulness of the head - flushing of the face - restlessness - and an augmentation of the force and frequency of heart action. again In remittent fever where the approach is not perfect and of short duration, it is impossible to 10 or 20 grs well in a very large majority of cases anticipate the exacerbation. whereas a dose of 2 or 3 grs / for the period of remission is sometimes of too limited a period to allow a second dose) would either have no effect or exasperate the symptoms.
Many premise the administration by General Bleeding - as a most valuable but as most dangerous and much abused remedial agent. I do not think it at all necessary except where the excitement is so intense as to threaten the integrity of structures, is a disease of a malaria resulting poison of specific character Malarious, and if unduly weaken the forces of the frame in its reaction against it.
There are other means which which will calm the transient storm without at all jeopardizing the recuperative power of the system. Mercurial purgatives - decidedly cold drinks - cold ablutions - &c and if there be any organ on which the fever makes a demonstration, it is combatted with local depletion and revulsives. It is a disease of a specific character, produced by a subtle deleterious poison poison.

Malarious - and if we unduly weaken the forces of the frame in its reaction against it, the system may succumb.
What there are cases, I will not deny, in which V.S is not only necessary but imperiously called for to prevent the system becoming embarrassed in its operations, but nice judgement is necessary to decide whether the phenomena transcend the limits of safety. If the excited condition of the frame were the result of common causes, the direct influence of debilitating means would not only be safe, but loudly called for.
Such Doctor is a sketch of my views. and if the exigencies and of space heat would permit, I would have traced your patience. in a little longer. I shall be very happy to hear from you at any time,

June 6. 1845 Friday — I have for a long time intended to keep a professional diary and have this day commenced — but have unfortunately to begin on this day in Friday if the stories of old women are to be credited, but procrastination is the thief of time, and defer not until to-morrow what can be done to-day. This shoal of "Putting off" is steadily grounding my and I expect some of these days will be my ruin, as it has been of thousands preceding me and millions succeeding me, and so on Friday or I will on sicken commence in spite of all traditionary horrors.

The weather for the last month has been most uncommonly dry. Not one drop of rain! The weather has been extremely variable - sometimes oppressively for use over coat and at others uncomfortably hot. The nights generally cool & pleasant. The winds have mostly blown from the northwest - occasionally from the North west and East ward. I never recollect seeing so many flies of the common House flies. they are quite pertinacious, and according to old Women notions, the presence is indicative of a sickly season, and portends

June 4. was called to Hons Point to see Mr G. who had been labouring under "Fever" for two or three days. He was complaining of Head ache. thirst and very restless. bowels inclined to be costive. No nausea. but an entire loss of appetite. The Fever has been of the "continued type". Has taken a purgative of Castor Oil which operated very well but without relieving the symptoms. Prescribed two doses of [illegible] one to be given immediately and if it does not purgative action in 4 hours to give the other powder. and if in six hours afterwards if necessary a dose of castor oil or magnesia. Food Lemonade for drinks. low food. and to be kept perfectly quiet.

5. I found my patient better, the Calomel powders operated three very well during the night. Has Temperature Not quite so much fever. skin still hot and dry. coated with Head ache. tongue coated with a yellowish white fur.
A dose of castor oil to be given in the morning. Hops steeped in Vinegar bound to his forehead. Feet washed in hot water. Food Lemonade as a drink.

6 No fever. complains of nothing - quite lively - The oil operated very well - 8 grs Quinine. Chicken broth thickened with rice -

7 No rise of fever. 8 grs Quinine. The little fellow has steadily improved. In this case I would rely on the first remission to exhibit the Quinine in a large dose. which most effectually annihilates any paroxysmal tendency.

8 I visited Capt Sothern Speedwell & Mrs Hills first Victim. Has been sick 3 or 4 days with fever. Head ache - Sore throat. and aching in his limbs. Has taking some Purgative Pills which operated but very little relief. Pres. 12 grs Calomel divided into 4 powders one every 2 hours until they operate and if in 4 hours after the last if no cathartic has been produced a
